Gillham Hall rededication to take place Sept. 28

By Roxanne Ring

Gillham Hall, a building that has been a cornerstone of The University of Toledo Main Campus since 1952, has undergone major renovations over the course of the last two years.

The state of Ohio provided $12.4 million in funding for the project. The building's exterior remained primarily untouched while the interior was completely revamped. Gillham Hall opened for classes for fall semester and features:

• State-of-the-art classrooms that range in capacity from 18 to 40 students;

- A 75-seat tiered multipurpose auditorium/ classroom/meeting room;
- Three technology support center computer labs;
- A doctoral dissertation presentation/defense conference room;
- Department suites that include student learning community space; and
- A brick entryway that offers the opportunity to inscribe dedications.

Gillham Hall will be rededicated to the Judith Herb College of Education at a special ceremony Friday, Sept. 28. Guided tours will be conducted between 2 and 3 p.m. The main event will begin on the lawn west of Gillham Hall at 3 p.m. The events are free and open to the public.

"Please join us to mark this important milestone in the history of The University of Toledo's Judith Herb College of Education," said Dr. Thomas Switzer, dean of the college.

SIGN OF THE TIMES: Robert F. Kennedy Jr., Natural Resources Defense Council senior attorney, signed autographs after his talk Thursday night in the Student Union Auditorium. In a speech frequently punctuated by applause from the attentive audience, Kennedy dissected both the Bush administration's "concerted effort to roll back environmental laws" and the suppression of that record by what he termed a "negligent press that has let down America."

Speaking in character, scholar brings message of Mahatma Gandhi to Toledo hose who never had a chance to meet Mahatma Gandhi or hear in person his message of freedom, nonviolence and civil rights will get their chance Sunday, Sept. 30, at 3 p.m. in The University of Toledo's Doermann Theater.

By Jon Strunk

Dr. Shall Sinha, a leading expert on the life and works of Gandhi, will deliver a presentation on "Conflict Resolution the Gandhi Way" in the character of Gandhi himself. Following his presentation, Sinha will take questions from the audience, answering as Gandhi would answer.

"Gandhi showed us the power and inevitability of nonviolent resistance to human and civil rights violations," said Dr. Yueh-Ting Lee, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences. "Not every society will have a leader like Mahatma Gandhi, but through people like Dr. Sinha, all have access to the philosophies and methods of one of history's most transformative leaders."

Sinha grew up in India studying both engineering and Gandhi's teaching and protest methods. For the last 20 years, he has been committed to the study and teaching of Gandhian principles. He and his wife, Pramila, are members of Nonviolent Peaceforce, an international non-governmental organization that spreads the Gandhian way of life throughout the world.

"Mahatma Gandhi lived and taught nonviolence. His own life is an experiment in truth," said Ila Mehta, a Hindu Temple representative, highlighting that this is the fourth annual celebration presented by the Hindu Temple commemorating the anniversary of Gandhi's birth. "I think this event will be a very effective way to observe the day of Gandhi's birth as an International Day of Nonviolence, as adopted by a United

New UT center puts emphasis on peace, democratic education

By Tobin J. Klinger

he University of Toledo Judith Herb College of Education is looking to raise the level of discourse in America through a new center focused on preparing citizens to be active participants in democracy.

UT will announce
Friday, Sept. 28, the creation of the Center for Nonviolence and Democratic Education. Attending and lending support will be Peter

Peter Yarrow at UT in 2004

Operation Respect on

Yarrow, founder of Operation Respect, an organization dedicated to stopping school violence through programs focusing on tolerance and respect. Yarrow is also a founding member of the famed folk group Peter, Paul and Mary.

"This center is focused on the idea that a democracy, more than any other form of a society, offers the greatest opportunity for a nonviolent culture," said Dr. Dale Snauwaert, associate professor of philosophy of education and the center's director. "Citizens need to have the ability to make informed decisions, and we're focusing on educational models that help develop the human capacity for informed consent."

The center will serve as a research base, working to develop a peace archive, while developing relationships with other universities in the study of democratic education and the pursuit of a culture of nonviolence.

"We are dedicated to going beyond educating the next generation of teachers and administrators," said Dr.

Thomas Switzer, dean of the Judith Herb
College of Education. "We want to raise the level of dialogue and help shape the way our society approaches educational endeavors."

The study of nonviolence and democratic education is a growing area of research interest in the United States and around the globe, according to Snauwaert. The center will bring together UT faculty members from across disciplines who have an active interest in the topic.

Prostitution conference to move hidden issues into public eye hile Toledo has much to be proud of, one of its biggest blights is the frequent attention it receives as a major hub for child sex trafficking and prostitution.

By Jon Strunk

The two-day Prostitution, Sex Work and the Commercial Sex Industry Conference 2007, which will be held Thursday and Friday, Sept. 27 and 28, in the UT Student Union on Main Campus, will offer presentations on different aspects of trafficking, prostitution and sex work.

"It is essential to move information about the scope of sex trafficking in Toledo past the academic and social work arena and make sure that our elected officials are working every day to deal with an ongoing tragedy that too often is hidden from most people's view," said Dr. Celia Williamson, associate professor of social work, who has organized the conference the past three years.

This year, Williamson and others helping exploited women and girls remove themselves from the sex trade will ask Toledo political leaders to sign a memorandum of understanding that acknowledges their recognition of child trafficking as child abuse and calls on them to clearly state their level of commitment to end Toledo sex trafficking.

In addition to the conference, tickets for "My Real Name: Breaking the Silence of Child Sex Trafficking in Ohio" are on sale for $15 in Health and Human Services Building Room 2630 on Main Campus from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tickets for the Sept. 27 Scott Park Campus showing and the Sept. 28 Doermann Theater performance also can be purchased on the day of the play for $20. Both performances will be from 7 to 9 p.m.

The play is an artistic retelling of real stories of life in child sex trafficking, featuring a mix of survivors and actors.
All proceeds will benefit Second Chance, a program of Toledo Area Ministries, which helps victims of child sex trafficking and adult prostitution through comprehensive and professional services.

"It's easy to cast prostitution aside as an issue only for the police, but especially when so many of these women started — often against their will — as girls, our community and our society need to see that the solution requires the coordination of criminal justice, social service and health-care agencies along with churches, citizens and survivors," Williamson said. "This conference brings these groups together to highlight for everyone the best practices that will improve our communities, but most importantly, the lives of these girls and women."

Registration will begin at 7:30 a.m. in the Student Union.

For more information, contact Williamson at 419.530.4084.

Nations resolution."

Mehta emphasized the importance of bringing together the Toledo community to participate in activities that help educate others of Gandhian nonviolence and knowledge.

"Understanding and appreciating differences help us to reduce conflict and violence. An educational event like this may help us to understand and appreciate human difference," Lee said.

Weather permitting, a peace walk sponsored by the Hindu Temple of Toledo and beginning at 2 p.m. will precede the event. The walk will begin at Corpus Christi University Parish, 2955 Dorr St., and end at Doermann Theater.

The free, public event is sponsored by the UT College of Arts and Sciences, the UT Religious Studies Program and the Hindu Temple.

Paralegal Studies Program to bring trial to UT Main Campus

By Chelsea-Lynn Carey

he Paralegal Studies Program will host Judge Gene Zmuda of the Lucas County Court of Common Pleas as he presides over a bench trial involving an active personal injury case Thursday, Sept. 27, in the Richard B. and Jane McQuade Mock Trial Courtroom in Health and Human Services Building Room 1419 on Main Campus.

Zmuda will meet with students beginning at 8:30 a.m., and court will begin at 9 a.m. and last until at least 3 p.m.

The case being presented is a personal injury case, which resulted from a motorcycle accident. A passenger is suing the driver of the motorcycle from injuries sustained from an accident.

"Observing a trial is a chance for anyone to learn firsthand the high regard our judicial system merits and the protection it affords all of our citizens. This is what the Paralegal Studies Program does for students — bring the law to life," said Kathleen Reed, UT associate professor and chair of the Paralegal Studies Program.

This is one of the events for the program's "Paralegal Studies Brings the Law to Life" theme that is the focus of this academic year.

Later this semester, UT will host Judge Timothy Kuhlman of the Toledo Municipal Court, who will be doing a "night court" session, where hearings, arraignments and pre-trial arguments will be heard on multiple cases.

During spring semester, UT will host the Ohio Sixth District Court of Appeals; this event will be a daylong session of oral arguments of appeals with at least three judges presiding. NEWS SEPT. 24, 2007

Professor emeritus continues to educate through Read for Literacy program

By Alissa Hammond

Dr. Bob Niedzielski, UT professor emeritus of chemistry, now serves as a volunteer tutor for Read for Literacy.

Read for Literacy, founded in 1986, is Toledo's volunteer adult literacy organization. There are 1,500 volunteer tutors who work with 1,700 adult learners in the community.

Niedzielski is tutoring a 49-year-old man who read at the first-grade level when he came to Read for Literacy in March. With Niedzielski's help, he will be on his way to achieving his goals of getting a job, learning to read and write, and training to use a computer.

"Involvement in the Read for Literacy program continues to be truly rewarding for me," Niedzielski said. "It's very satisfying to see Henry, my student, make steady progress, and the one-on-one experience gives me immediate feedback."

Prior to becoming involved in the Read for Literacy program, Niedzielski was a chemistry professor at UT for 35 years and served as an administrator his last 10 years of teaching.

Niedzielski was a volunteer at the Site Center for 10 years, where he used to read aloud local and national newspapers. After the program closed, he began searching for a similar service program to which he could devote his time and talent. "I had talked to Steve Weiss, a friend and colleague, who had given me a card about Read for Literacy, and I had it for about a year and decided to look into the program," he said.

After going through a four-week training session, he was assigned to Henry Hartford in March and the teaching began.

"I had the desire to stay busy and continue doing things I enjoy. This program allowed me to do that, as well as give back to the community," Niedzielski said. He added, "With my volunteer work at the Site Center, I never knew how many people were utilizing my services, but with this one-on-one interaction, I can see the benefits firsthand and can have the satisfaction of seeing hard work pay off."

According to Niedzielski, Hartford came to Read for Literacy wanting to improve his reading skills so that he can have the chance to better help people. Hartford is very active in mental health outreach in the community. He started Read for Literacy 20 to 25 years ago, but had never completed the program. Since working with Niedzielski, he is completing the second series, and is looking forward to finishing the course.

Hartford has been trying to learn to read for 20 years, but has experienced some obstacles along the way that have really made it tough to give the necessary time commitment. "To some, reading and comprehending is no big deal; but to me, it is a mountain, and I want to climb to the top of the mountain and conquer it," Hartford said.

"Since learning to read, I have been able to get my driver's license, read road and building signs, and will hopefully obtain my GED as I continue along," Hartford added.

He said it's been difficult not being able to read for 50 years, relying solely on es, neighborhood centers and coffee shops around the area. The volunteers provide tutoring for at least four hours a week, which results in a value of at least $3.5 million, according to Jim Funk, director of Read for Literacy.

At the completion of the Read for Literacy program, the student should be reading at the fourth-grade level, which is above the level that is required to read newspapers.

There are the books that include the lessons and checkups, which are completed at the end of a series, but Niedzielski and his student also utilize newspapers, crossword memorizing everything he comes across.

"Memorizing has become my crutch, and it is hard to work more toward comprehending what I'm reading, rather than just memorizing the words in front of me."

"I was gratified when, perhaps a month ago, Henry mentioned that he was reading roadside signs, and that he has a keen interest in reading to his grandchildren," Niedzielski said. "I am particularly impressed with the interest he has displayed. He has been showing up with one or more books that he has checked out that he attempts to read on his own and which we review on a regular basis."

Said Hartford of his tutor, "It takes a very special person to take time out of their schedule and help someone for free. He has become my friend and has been patient with me each step of the way, and I know it hasn't been easy. I hope there are others out there who can help just like Bob helped me."

Tutoring takes place in library branch-puzzles and the special Read for Literacy section at the Toledo-Lucas County Public Library.

There are usually around 15 lessons, and Niedzielski and his student meet twice a week. Some lessons take only one meeting; others may carry over into two or three.

There are 65,000 Toledo residents who read at or below the "basic" level, Funk said. Read for Literacy has trained 2,660 volunteer tutors who have helped 4,600 adults learn to read or strengthen their reading skills. The Toledo-Lucas County Public Library provides free office space and support services for tutoring.

Funk encourages retirees and faculty, staff and students who are looking for a rewarding experience to volunteer for the program. There are approximately 10 adult learners on a waiting list to receive a tutor.

For more information about the Read for Literacy program or to get involved, contact the organization at 419.242.READ (7323).

Researchers: Apply for awards has announced that the 2007-08

University Research Awards and Fellowship guidelines are available.

The annual internal grant program supports the research of faculty members from all disciplines on Main Campus. The programs seek to advance the faculty's scholarly efforts.

The eight programs provide different types and levels of support:

- Summer Research Awards and Fellowship Program summer research projects.
- deArce Memorial Endowment Fund in Support of Medical Research and Development — medical research and development projects.
- Interdisciplinary Research Initiation Awards — supports groups of at least four faculty from at least two academic departments in beginning a new interdisciplinary research project.
- Phase 0 Small Business Innovation Research and Small Business Technology Transfer Program — work with an outside business in preparation of a Small Business Innovation Research/Small Business Technology Transfer proposal.
- Proposal Preparation Mini-Grants to Federal Agencies revising and resubmitting a competitive proposal to a federal agency.
- Visiting Faculty Research Awards invite a visiting faculty member into a UT research project for the summer in order to develop inter-institutional collaborations and to help forge stronger ties among undergraduate institutions.
- Archaeological Research Endowment Fund archaeological research.
- Publications Subvention Program publication of a scholarly manuscript by an academic press.

Applicants interested in a particular program can visit the Office of Research Development Web site at http://www. utoledo.edu/research/uraf/programs.html and follow the guidelines for applying. On the page is a link to the cover sheet for that program that will need to be submitted, along with the necessary attachments, to the Office of Research Development no later than 4 p.m. on the deadline date.

UT Medical Center tile project offers hope in cancer fight here are fish, boats, birds, flowers, butterflies, balloons, school colors, teddy bears and even a golf hole — all symbols of the pieces of human lives.

symbol in the fight against breast cancer, different designs and hand-written messages of gratitude, hope, encouragement and love to cancer survivors. Each tile tells a story — a story of life, survival, hope, courage and sometimes death, and serves as a lasting symbol of the fight against cancer.

For example, one tile features a ribbon with a golf green and hole flag with the inscription, "Dad, you already scored a hole > in one with me." There are inscriptions such as "Miracles can happen when you believe," 'Thanks to the greatest nurses in the world," "You made me feel like dancing," and "Laughter, love and chocolate."

The project began four years ago when Barbara Jaska.

herself, approached the Cancer Institute and the former MCO Foundation to see if the two organizations wanted to join forces to encourage cancer patients to paint ceramic tiles as a form of therapy and to raise funds for the institute and for cancer research.

Jan Tipton, oncology clinical nurse, said the project is aimed at helping patients express themselves and use art as a tool in healing. As a nurse, she knows there is not only a need for a cure, but also a need to create more awareness about the disease. It encourages cancer patients, she said, to create a personal expression of their experience and express the individual's feelings about their battle with cancer.

"Many tiles were done to honor the memory of a loved one," she said. "It also has been a form of therapy for caregivers in helping them express their feelings as they process the experience. It doesn't have to be artists' quality. It is the thought, creativity and symbolism that is therapeutic."

Marge Rice, a retired Perrysburg schoolteacher, is one of dozens of cancer patients who have been helped by UT Medical Center cancer specialists and whose tile is displayed. She was diagnosed with stage III ovarian cancer four and half years ago and underwent surgery and aggressive chemotherapy. She said she "feels blessed" to have remained cancer-free since the original diagnosis. Her tile, which features a

"I had such a strong, wonderful support group at Toth," said Rice, who took a leave of absence from teaching during treatment. She added that her cancer battle was "a valuable lesson for my students."

Today, Rice and her husband, Ron, who have been married 42 years, stay busy. They frequently visit their two grown children and three grandchildren in Columbus. They both enjoy being outdoors and have put numerous miles on their tennis shoes and hiking boots. Marge loves to garden, practices yoga, sings in her church choir, reads a lot, and is a part-time clerk at Way Library in Perrysburg.

Celebrate right to read at Banned Books Vigil Oct. 4

Rv Vicki I. Kroll

anned Books Ahoy! Treasure Your Freedom to Read" is the theme of the 10th annual Banned Books Vigil, which will take place Thursday, Oct. 4, on The University of Toledo's Main Campus.

UT faculty members and students, as well as librarians and authors, will give short presentations from 9 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. in the Center for Performing Arts Center Theatre.

"Over the years, our event has grown from a cluster of devoted souls reading passages from banned books at Thackeray's Books into a fall campus event that brings hundreds of UT and community people together to celebrate the right to read and think freely," said Dr. Paulette D. Kilmer, associate professor of communication and one of the organizers of the event. "We call it a vigil because that name reminds us of our history and our mission to bear witness and, therein, to protect intellectual freedom."

She added banned books will be given out as door prizes throughout the day.

In the fourth week of September for more than two decades, the American Library Association, the Book Sellers of America and hundreds of other sponsors of Banned Books Week have inspired U.S. citizens to plan events celebrating intellectual freedom. Topics and speakers for the vigil will be:

• 9 a.m. — "Reading Is Power!"
by Dr. Mark
Denham, UT
acting associate dean for social sciences in the College of Arts and Sciences, and
Dr. Marcia Suter, associate professor and director of library services:

• 9:30 a.m. — "Reading for Love of Reading:
A Poem by Pinsky and a Poem by Stevens" by Dr.
Sara Lundquist, associate professor and chair of English;
• 2 p.m

- 10 a.m. "Nazi Germany and Book Burning" by Dr. Larry Wilcox, professor of history;
- 10:30 a.m. "Better Read Than Dead: Ban These 10 Books" by Dr. Brian Patrick, associate professor of communication;
- 11 a.m. "We Are Strangers" by Warren Woodbury, Toledo author;

• 11:30 a.m. — "The Silent Battle: Censorship in Elementary Schools" by Tara Schenkenberger, library media specialist at Penta Career Center, Perrysburg;

• Noon — "Literature, Freedom and Dissent: Reading Lolita in Tehran" by Dr.

Linda Smith, senior lecturer in the Honors Program;

• 12:30 p.m. — "The Moral of the Story" by Dr. Paul Many, professor of communication;

• 1:30 p.m. — "The Media's Contribution to the Decline of an Informed Citizenry and the Erosion of Democracy" by Dr. Carter Wilson, professor of political science;

- 2 p.m. "Last Places for Radical Gestures: Late 20th Century Art, Imagination and Law" by Dr. Mysoon Rizk, associate professor of art;
- 2:30 p.m. "Theatre: Scene or Obscene?" by Irene Alby, lecturer in theatre; Cornel Gabara, assistant professor of theatre; Dr. Ben Pryor, associate professor and chair of philosophy and co-director of the Law and Social Thought Program; Dave DeChristopher, actor and author; and Holly Monsos, associate professor and chair of theatre:

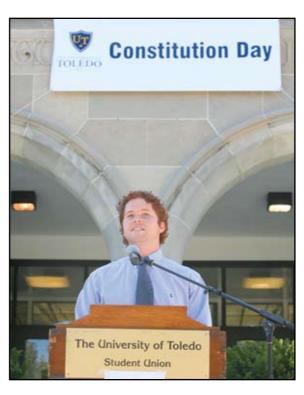

- 3:30 p.m. "Allen Ginsburg, HOWL and City Lights Books on Trial" by Dr. Tom Barden, director of the Honors Program and professor of English;
- 4 p.m. "Let's Play Jeopardy!" with Mark Horan, associate professor of general libraries and coordinator of general library collections:
- 4:30 p.m. "Harry Potter and the Deathly Problem of Religious Censorship" by Dr. Sharon Barnes, associate professor of interdisciplinary studies;
- 5 p.m. "Freedom of the Press Except on Campus?" by Chris Ankney and Melinda Lauber, Independent Collegian editor-inchief and news editor, respectively;
- 5:30 p.m. "The Battle Is Never Won Ten Years of Celebrating the Right to Read and Think Freely," by Kilmer, Brian Hickam, assistant professor of general libraries, and Smith; and

UT physician assistant group to hold run/walk to benefit cancer patients

By Chelsea-Lynn Carey

he UT Student Academy of the American Academy of Physician Assistants will host "The Race for Victory," a 5K run and walk, Saturday, Oct. 13, at Swan Creek Metropark.

"The Race for Victory" will benefit the Victory Center, a group that supports and educates cancer patients and their families in northwest Ohio and southeast Michigan, according to Ashley Finch, a UT physician assistant student and chair of the race advertising committee.

Finch said the group decided to donate the proceeds of the event to the Victory Center to benefit the local community.

"We truly felt the Victory Center is passionate about its program and very willing to make a difference," Finch said.

Both the walk and run will begin at 9 a.m. on the all-purpose trail near the Glendale Avenue entrance of the park. Check-in for participants will begin at 8 a.m.

This race is open to all ages, and brackets will be formed according to the number of participants and their respective ages.

There will be awards for each age bracket, along with a grand prize for the top male and female finishers.

"Our motivation in creating this race was to help celebrate National Physician Assistants Week, held annually Oct. 6-12, while also supporting a local, medically related charity," said Laura Sell, UT physician assistant student and race committee chair. "We hope that UT students, along with the rest of the community, will join us in celebrating the physician assistant profession while raising funds for the Victory Center and their patients."

The pre-registration fee is $20, which ends Sept. 29; race day registration is $25. With a group of 10 or more participants, the fee is $15 each.

VACATION TIME ... FINALLY! Marcia Meeker, accountant 2 in Accounts Payable, left, shared a laugh with Sue Kielczewski, account clerk 3, at her retirement party last week. Meeker worked at the University for 38 years. She was a food service worker for five years and a messenger worker for two years before joining Accounts Payable. "When I first started here — it was Maumee Valley Hospital then — it was a family-type environment. I enjoyed that the most," she said. Meeker has a lot of plans. "I am going on my first real vacation in 30 years to New Hampshire. From there, I have plenty of home projects I have ben putting off that take time to do," she said. "My friends and I are signed up for line dancing lessons, jazzercise and bowling."
